

Drafting of the New Outdoor Advertising By-Laws

The City of Johannesburg is calling on all outdoor advertising industry players and the general public to participate in making inputs to the drafting of Outdoor Advertising by-laws to be later consolidated for the finalization of the new by-law.

The by-law review process spearheaded by the City of Johannesburg (Building Development Management) is centred on an open public participation process which will afford all interested and affected parties to give their input towards the drafting of the final by-law. Residents are therefore encouraged to take an active part in this public participation process as detailed herein.

The below-stated public consultations will be convened in all of the City's seven (7) Regions to afford Joburg residents the opportunity to give their inputs. It is within this process that residents are encouraged to lead the changes they want to see in the outdoor advertising by-laws by taking part in the public consultation meetings in their respective areas.
